'A teacher touches the world'

Coolidge teacher gets national honor

"To teach is to exercise one of the greatest powers that I possess. For a teacher who touches a student touches the world. My influence — tempered with knowledge, a positive attitude, and lots of love — can help produce the explorers of Mars, the writers of peace treaties, the growers of wheat, the discoverers of cures, the teachers of students-to-be."

— Edward M. Schroeder

Joe Montana, Phil Simms and other top award winners would all be going to Disney World following such an accomplishment, but Ed Schroeder has already been there.

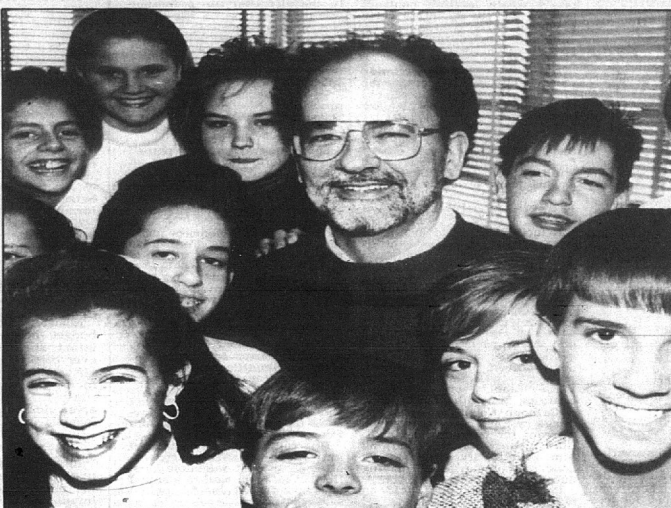

Schroeder, an English teacher at Coolidge Junior High School in Granite City, was the topic of conversation around water coolers and coffee pots in offices in Granite City and across the country after being selected by his peers and a nationwide panel as the "Outstanding Teacher of 1991."

The announcement was made during a live telecast of "The American Teacher Awards" Sunday night on the Disney Channel.

The program was broadcast during the Disney Channel's free holiday preview, reaching 50 million cable television households, and will be replayed several times in November and December.

The program honored 36 teachers in 12 different subject categories.

Those teachers were selected from among hundreds of applicants, by a committee made up of representatives from national education organizations such as the American Federation of Teachers, the National Parent Teacher Association and the National School Boards Association.

Schroeder was honored in the English category. One teacher from each of the 12 categories was selected as the outstanding teacher in his field.

The 36 teachers themselves then selected Schroeder from among the 12 subject winners as the "Outstanding Teacher of 1991."

Upon receiving the outstanding English teacher award, Schroeder proceeded to the podium at the Pantages Theater in Hollywood and spontaneously sang a few bars of "Zip-a-dee-doo-dah."

"If you had the chance to sing live before 55 million people, wouldn't you?" Schroeder asked.

"When you wish upon a star, dreams can come true," he said.

The action was typical of the unpredictable Schroeder and his teaching philosophy.

When Schroeder's name was then announced as the Outstanding Teacher, "I almost wet my

Charged with sexual assault

A 33-year-old Pontoon Beach man has been charged with aggravated criminal sexual assault for alleged incidents with his 12-year-old daughter. The man, whose name is being withheld to protect the daughter, was charged Monday in a warrant issued by the Madison County State's Attorney's Office.

Bond was set at $100,000.

Lt. Mike Crouch of the Pontoon Beach Police Department said the man "has been very cooperative during the investigation," and was expected to turn himself in to police Tuesday afternoon.

Crouch said the investigation originated in September after the daughter ran away from home.

"She was located the next day and told us she had been sexually abused," Crouch said.

He said an investigation by his department and the Illinois Department of Children and Family Services "uncovered certain evidence which led to the charges."

According to Crouch, the girl told police that the sexual assault began about one year before she ran away. He said he was unsure whether the alleged abuse was an ongoing occurrence or one or two isolated incidents.

Crouch said the suspect, at the request of DCFS, moved out of the family home as a condition of the daughter's return.

Police offer tips for the holidays

The upcoming holiday season is a special time of year — and a busy time as well.

It is a time when busy people often forget to be careful about their property and personal safety. As a result, people are especially vulnerable to theft and other crimes, according to Granite City Police Chief Don Knight.

"The tragic Decker case — the abduction and murder of a young couple while Christmas shopping several years ago — is a grim reminder that criminals are always seeking a victim," Knight said.

For the holiday season, the Police Department is offering some basic tips to help keep Christmas cheerful and safe.

Labor dispute may cost retirees their benefits

By Jeffrey Peyton
Staff writer

More than 100 Midwest Rubber Co. retirees and their families apparently will lose their medical and life insurance benefits next week, indirectly the result of the three-month dispute between Midwest Rubber and the United Rubber Workers Local 42 in Sauget.

John Keserauskis, general manager of the rubber reclaiming plant in Sauget, refused to say exactly how many people would be affected. Nor would he elaborate on why the company chose to eliminate retiree benefits.

"There is still no contract, so I won't comment," Keserauskis said.

But Marvin Brown, a 1975 retiree, gave the Journal a copy of a letter Keserauskis sent him Nov. 6. The letter stated that all retirees and their spouses would lose health care coverage Nov. 30.

The letter also says everyone who retired from the company prior to November 1988 will no longer be entitled to continue coverage at their own expense.

Life insurance coverage will also cease Nov. 30, though most retirees will have the option of converting a $3,000 burial benefit to a commercial policy.

Brown said most of the people affected are the widows of retirees. While their ages range from 60 to 80, many are older.

"This is gonna kill them," Brown said.

"I don't know what we're gonna do."

Jean Paul, URW Local 42 president, said retiree benefits should never have been made part of any dispute between the company and the union.

"The retirees are not a part of our bargaining unit," Paul said. "When the company put eliminating their benefits on the table, the union's response was not to discuss it at the bargaining table."

"We feel that the company's position on this is totally incorrect," Paul said. "I can't go into details. I don't want to jeopardize future litigation."

"But we are not turning our backs on these people," Paul added. "They were formerly brothers. We feel they still are brothers, even if we can't bargain for them."

Paul said the United Rubber Workers, all the way to the international level, is addressing the situation.

"We're developing some plans to help these people protect their rights," Paul said. He said he could not elaborate on those plans at the present time.

Paul said he felt for the retirees, and he intends to do all he can for them.

"Nobody is going to pick up coverage for them now," he said. "Most of them are 60-80 and older. How they can get insurance at this stage I just don't know."

Cold weather has created heavy demand for natural gas

Record cold in early November pushed natural gas usage by Illinois Power customers to the highest level recorded in the past 20 years.

During the first 11 days of November, IP customers used more than 4.7 billion cubic feet (bcf) of natural gas, 7 percent higher than the previous mark set in 1976 and more than 50 percent above the average for the period.

Temperatures across the state fell 15 to 21 degrees below normal through the period and several near-century-old record low temperature marks were broken.

Fortunately, gas prices for residential customers are about 10 percent lower than last year at this time.

Still, the higher-than-average usage early in the heating season could push bills higher than last year. During the past heating season (October 1990 through May 1991), the average monthly bill for the typical residential customer was $60.92.

Cold weather can affect a customer's bill in two ways. As temperatures drop, natural gas usage increases. This higher demand also tends to push up the price of fuel.

The cost of buying the gas that Illinois Power provides to customers can increase by more than 50 percent between low summer prices and higher winter prices. Abnormally cold temperatures could make that increase even greater, a utility spokesman said.

Following are tips for lowering heating bills this winter:

— Heating cost can be lowered by setting your thermostat at 68 degrees during the day and lower at night. If no one is home during the day, the daytime setting can also be kept lower. Each degree over 68 increases heating costs by 3 percent.

— Keep the cold out and heat in by caulking and weather-stripping around doors and windows. Close crawl-space vents in the winter and shut fireplace dampers when not in use. Don't block heating registers and vents with furniture or drapes.

— Open shades and draperies in windows where the sun is shining. Close up those windows when the sun has passed that part of the home, to help keep the heat in.

Fu bug is around, but no epidemic yet

By Bonita Tillman
Staff writer

The best way to handle the fu bug is to take steps to avoid it, a local health official said this week.

"The key to prevention is to get vaccinated," said Larry McCulley, health promotions coordinator with the St. Clair County Health District.

McCulley said area residents may feel bad and know several others who feel the same, but the fu bug has not gotten any bigger a bite this year than in previous years.

"Based on the reports we're getting, the number of cases is fairly comparable to previous years. School districts are reporting in, but there's nothing big," he said.

Some southern school districts have canceled classes because so many students are missing days with the fu, but that has not happened in the Metro East, McCulley added.

"The Taiwan flu has caused a lot of cases in surrounding states, but not here yet," he said.

McCulley credited the relatively low number of cases with the growing use of fu shots.

Leaf drop-off will continue

The Granite City Council recommended Tuesday night that the city's leaf drop-off program be extended to the first week in January.

The motion passed unanimously on a voice vote, and Mayor Von Dee Cruse said he would abide by the council's recommendation.

City residents may take their leaves to the Sanitation Department, 2301 Adams St., from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Fridays and 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturdays. The program is free.

Alderman Judy Whitaker, who was unable to attend the meeting, has reported that almost 9,500 bags of leaves were collected during the first six weeks of the program, including 6,000 last week and when 4th Ward Aldermen Dan Brown and Dan Partney picked up bagged leaves and transported them to the drop-off point as a service to their

Mishap involves trucks

A traffic accident on Madison Avenue, just south of 15th Street about 8 a.m. Nov. 22 involved two pickup trucks.

Phil E. Barnett, 37, of the 2200 block of Delmar Avenue said he was stopped in the southbound lanes of Madison Avenue in traffic for a school bus when his 1988 Dodge pickup truck was struck from the rear by a 1970 Ford pickup truck operated by Anthony G. Mabry, 26, of the 2100 block of Delmar Avenue.

Barnett sustained an injury but declined immediate medical attention.

Mabry was charged with failure to reduce speed to avoid an accident.

Video camera missing

Robert Cornett of the 2200 block of Leyden Avenue reported Nov. 21 that a video camera valued at $800 was stolen from his residence.

Boat in yard damaged

James Snelson of the 2500 block of Edison Avenue reported Nov. 22 that his 1988 21-foot Supra boat was damaged while in the yard at his residence.

The boat's custom touring cover was cut as well as upholstery on the craft's rear sun deck.

Warrant served on man

Jeffrey Lynn Cooke, 36, of Caseyville was arrested at 11:45 p.m. Nov. 22 at the Granite City Police Station on a warrant alleging failure to appear on a charge of resisting a police officer. Bond on the warrant was set at $4000.

Cannabis charge filed

Anthony T. Burke, 22, of the 5100 block of Lakeview Drive, Pontoon Beach, was arrested at 1:22 a.m. Nov. 25 and charged with unlawful possession of cannabis and resisting a peace officer.

An officer was dispatched to the Huk's convenience store, 2430 Pontoon Road, in regard to a customer allegedly refusing to pay a taxicab fare.

At the scene, during a pat down search, an officer located a clear plastic bag containing a hand-rolled cigarette alleged to contain cannabis, in Burke's inside left coat pocket.

Burke refused to cooperate with police and threatened officers, a police report said. He was lodged pending bail.

Reports purse stolen

Kathy Marsala of the 4900 block of Carl Avenue reported Nov. 23 that her purse was stolen from underneath a chair while she was a patron at Kilroy's at 1229 Niedringhaus Ave. The blue purse worth $50 contained personal papers and keys.

Granite City

Man booked for battery

Jeffrey D. Lockhart, 22, of the 2900 block of Iowa Street was arrested at 4:23 a.m. Nov. 24 and booked for battery.

Kelley Lockhart, 21, Jeffrey Lockhart's wife, told police Jeffrey Lockhart arrived home at about 3 a.m., awakened her, slapped and punched her on the head and upper body and placed her in a head lock.

He was lodged in the city jail pending bail.

Theft of funds alleged

Terry A.C. Jarosewicz, also known as Terry Creek, 19, of the 2000 block of Missouri Avenue was arrested Nov. 21 and charged with theft in regard to an incident in the early morning hours of Nov. 20 when money was reported missing from Lenny's Tavern, 2001 Illinois Ave.

Auto stuck on tracks

John M. Ropac, 36, of the 3300 block of Colgate Place was arrested at 7:34 p.m. Nov. 20 and charged with driving under the influence of alcohol, operating an uninsured motor vehicle, and failing to reduce speed to avoid an accident.

Officers reported discovering Ropac in a brown 1982 Oldsmobile Cutlass auto straddling the 20th Street railroad tracks near West 20th Street, about 100 feet east of Missouri Avenue.

He was lodged pending bail.

Found asleep at wheel

Mark D. Pellazari, 26, of the 700 block of 26th Street was arrested at 12:32 a.m. Nov. 20 and charged with driving under the influence of alcohol.

An officer reported observing a green Plymouth station wagon in the eastbound lane of Nameoki Drive with the engine running, its lights on, and Pellazari asleep behind the wheel.

Game, tapes, gun gone

In a burglary at the residence of Pamela Walls in the 2800 block of E. 26th Street, reported Nov. 21, the intruder took a BB pellet gun worth $25, a Nintendo game valued at $100 and Nintendo tapes worth $40.

An inventory of property was being compiled to determine what other items may be missing.

constituents.

City Comptroller K.P. MacTaggart said the program will not be free to the city, but he could not estimate the cost as it would be impossible for him to predict the volume of leaves that will be dropped off.

According to MacTaggart, the city's waste hauling contract entitles the city to 20,400 cubic yards of "free" dumping. He said additional dumping would cost the city $205 per 40-cubic-yard dumpster.

7th Ward Alderman Sandy Crites said it is essential that the alternative program be offered because the city refused to allow open burning.

Brown and Partney spent a combined 1 1/2 hours Nov. 22 throwing bags of leaves on the back of a tandem truck and hauling them to the Sanitation Department drop-off location.

Man helps find his stolen truck

A lucky 49-year-old area resident aided in the recovery of his truck Nov. 22 after it had been stolen the day before.

Edward R. Pearson, 36, of no known address, was charged with an offense relating to a motor vehicle in relation to the incident. He was further charged with two counts of assault and one count each of resisting a peace officer and obstructing a peace officer.

Pearson was also wanted by Jersey County on a warrant charging him with vehicle theft, a Calhoun County warrant for burglary, a Fairview Heights warrant for burglary and a St. Clair County warrant charging him with failure to appear in court on a charge of driving under the influence of alcohol.

Pearson was being held on $75,000 bond.

Fred Woehrl of Mitchell flagged down an officer at 3:30 p.m. Nov. 22 and reported that "When leaf burning was banned (by City Council vote Nov. 5), the city lacked an alternative program," Partney said while on his route Friday.

"The city gives us a monthly expense allowance, and it's nice to use that money to help our constituents," Brown added.

Both Brown and Partney voted in favor of an ordinance that would have allowed leaf burning in the city. But the ordinance was defeated by a 7-6 vote at the Nov. 5 council meeting.

Some aldermen who voted against the measure said leaf burning can cause health problems and pollute the atmosphere.

In other action Tuesday, Cruse proclaimed Nov. 26 "Edward M. Schroeder Jr. Day" in Granite City, and presented Schroeder with a key to the city.

Schroeder was recently named the "Outstanding Teacher of 1991" by the Walt Disney Co.

he had just seen someone driving his white 1976 Ford F150 pickup truck. The truck had been stolen Nov. 21.

Officers responded to J.M. Motors, 2310 Nameoki Road, where they were told Pearson attempted to trade the truck "for something sporty," according to a police report.

An officer drew his pistol and ordered Pearson to the ground, at which time Pearson attempted to flee on foot, the report says.

The officer fired one warning shot into the air, and an employee of the car dealership knocked Pearson to the ground.

Pearson allegedly struggled and fought with officers, attempting to hit one in the face. He had to be carried to a squad car and forced inside, police said.

Pearson is also alleged to have given police a false name while at the police station.

Truck runs into train engine

A truck driver was injured at 1:23 a.m. Saturday Nov. 23, when his vehicle struck the side of a moving train engine.

James E. Ray, 36, of Park-Towne West in Granite City was driving east on Edwardsville Road at the railroad tracks near 20th Street when the accident occurred.

Ray told police that he didn't see the train crossing the roadway and his 1978 International semi-tractor truck struck the front end of the second engine moving on the tracks.

The train engineer reported the engines were moving at a very slow rate of speed when he saw the truck approaching and then hit the side of Engine 1503, the second in a line of four engines crossing the road from south to north.

Witnesses and the engineer reported the crossing warning lights were activated at the time.

Ray was taken to St. Elizabeth Medical Center, where he declined treatment and went home.

Ray was charged with disobeying a railroad crossing signal, failure to reduce speed to avoid an accident, failure to wear a safety belt and illegal transportation of alcohol.

News in review

News in review provides a summary of some of the past week's stories. This column is designed for out-of-town readers who do not receive the Sunday and Wednesday Press-Record/Journals.

The tax levy approved by the Granite City Council last week is designed to keep the city's property tax rate next year at $1.587 — the same rate it has been each year since 1985.

The rate, for each $100 of assessed valuation, will support an increase of more than $89,000 in the actual amount levied according to Comptroller K.P. MacTaggart, because the total assessed valuation for property in the city has increased by more than $5.6 million.

Although the levy represents a $1 million deficit, according to MacTaggart, he said he does not see any serious financial problems for the city in the next year.

A recent study theorizes that the Women, Infants and Children's food supplement program may be partially responsible for an epidemic of a formerly rare life-threatening condition in bottled babies, called water intoxication.

Dr. James P. Keating, a professor of pediatrics and a member of the team of researchers from the Washington University School of Medicine, said WIC's policy of providing one can of formula a day sets up the possibility of water intoxication.

Keating said the condition occurs when a "very hungry" infant is given water instead of formula. Only an infant used to being fed well, he said, is capable of drinking the large amount of water necessary to cause water intoxication.

Fayeada Mannan, administrator of the WIC program in the East Side Health District, stressed that the WIC program is a "supplemental program" and said that, from the very beginning, mothers are told they will need to buy additional formula.

Mannan said part of the WIC program is to help mothers to budget their resources in order to be able to provide for the infant. She also said the WIC program stresses breast-feeding over bottle-feeding.

Keating, however, said it is unrealistic to believe that all WIC mothers will be able to purchase more formula as soon as they run out. He said water intoxication has become a nationwide epidemic and said the WIC program should double the amount of formula it provides.

Paula Sims' lawyer is claiming victory after a court ruling that may make the book "Precious Victims" part of Sims' appeal of her murder conviction. Sims was convicted of murdering her infant daughter, Heather, who Sims maintained was abducted by a masked man from the family's home in Alton. Sims is serving a life sentence.

"Precious Victims," a book about the case, was co-authored by former Assistant State's Attorney Don Weber, who prosecuted Sims, and Charles Bosworth Jr., a reporter who covered the trial for the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Donald Gresham, Sims' attorney, contends the book corroborates Sims' claims that she was denied a fair trial through prosecutorial misconduct, withholding of evidence and perjured testimony.

Stephen Norris, deputy director of the Appellate Prosecutor's Office, said he is "unhappy" that the 5th Appellate Court has decided to hear Gresham's arguments for inclusion of the book in the appeal, but said he is unsure if his office will take any further action.

New students are failing placement tests at colleges

The three R's are rusty among new students at SIUE.

A majority of the new students attending the university have placement scores low enough to funnel them into at least one precollege course. All new students are now tested in reading, writing and math.

"A number of incoming freshmen have told me they didn't have too much writing in high school," Karen Patty-Graham, director of instructional services, said.

Placement tests at Lewis and Clark Community College had similar results to those at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville.

Unlike the open access of a community college, students enrolling in SIUE must meet certain requirements on the American College Test and in class rank to be accepted.

Of the three skills on the test, students had the hardest time with math.

Seventy-three percent of the 1,889 new SIUE students tested showed a need for a preparatory math course at the university.

"We really want students to have minimum competency before they take the courses," Patty-Graham said.

There was a less than 1 percent difference between students coming straight from high school and those transferring in from other colleges and universities.

Of the 896 transfer students, 73.7 percent could not meet college algebra requirements; 73.4 percent of the 965 recent high school graduates had the same problem.

"The problem is how much they are retaining from what they were taught. We read and write on a day-to-day basis. But with math, many high school students only take two years of math, and there are two years between their last math class and the test. And math skills are not easily retained," Patty-Graham said.

Students did much better on writing tests, but almost half still did not have the skills required for a college writing course.

Of the 1,857 new students taking the writing test, 49.7 percent were channeled into developmental writing courses because of their test scores. That included 55.8 percent of the 961 recent high school graduates tested and 43.3 percent of the 896 transfer students tested.

Students did best on the reading tests. About 39 percent of the 1,899 new students tested had to take developmental reading courses.

Of the 974 coming straight from high school, 46.3 percent did not qualify for freshman English and ended up in a developmental course.

Of the 895 transfer students, 32 percent did not test at college-level reading.

"These percentages are fairly typical of what we have experienced in the past," Patty-Graham said.

Similar state-run universities would probably show the same figures, she added.

Open debate on phone rates urged

The Citizens Utility Board last week called on legislative leaders to bring the debate on telephone pricing "out of the back rooms" by establishing an independent task force to review the state's telephone regulations.

In a letter to House Speaker Michael Madigan, Senate President Phil Rock, House Minority Leader Lee Daniels and Senate Minority Leader James "Pete" Philip, CUB officials praised lawmakers for extending the current telephone pricing law until May 15 to allow more time to study whether changes to the law are needed.

However, the group cautioned that the Legislature must use the next six months to conduct an open investigation of the law. The only way to do that, the group said, is to create an independent task force that includes representatives of all groups impacted by the law.

"It's time for the Legislature to bring the debate on telephone pricing out of the back rooms so that the public and lawmakers clearly understand what's at stake," CUB President Bernard Puglisi said.

"This is too important an issue to let Illinois Bell and the rest of the phone industry dictate the terms of the new law."

CUB Executive Director Susan Stewart said the state task force should include representatives of consumer groups, business interests and regulators, as well as the phone companies, and should be staffed by those who have no ties to the phone industry.

CUB said Illinois Bell and other phone companies were pushing lawmakers to make radical changes to the law during the two-week fall veto session that ended Nov. 3.

The companies tried to push their proposal through as an amendment to a conference committee report, but could muster only two votes in favor of that legislative maneuver, it is contended.

Instead, the General Assembly approved a bill to extend the current telephone law, which expires at the end of the year, until May 15, 1992. Gov. Jim Edgar has indicated he will approve the extension.

CUB Executive Director Stewart said Illinois Bell has been trying to "sneak through radical changes" in the way phone prices are set, without any investigation or full public debate on the plan, since June 1990, when the company introduced an amendment during the final days of the legislative session.

"Illinois Bell's activities over the last year and a half have been an insult to lawmakers and to every citizen of the state," she said.

"It's time for the company to clean up its act and stop trying to play fast and loose with the legislative process. If Bell's plan seems a good deal for consumers, then put it on the table and hold it up for public scrutiny."

Gambling on Belle rebounds

SPRINGFIELD — The Alton Belle Casino had its second biggest weekly gambling haul two weeks ago.

The Belle's take after bets were paid off was $720,506 for the one-week period ending Sunday morning Nov. 17, state Gaming Board fiscal officer Tom Hutchinson said Thursday.

The only week with higher passenger gambling losses since the boat began operating Sept. 10 was the $774,506 take for the week of Oct. 7 to 13.

Hutchinson said the Belle's strong revenues surprise him because revenues have plunged dramatically on Iowa floating casinos.

The Alton boat made more money two weeks ago than The President at Davenport, Iowa, even though the Iowa boat is four times as large, Hutchinson said.

The Iowa boats, however, stopped cruising Nov. 1 and now offer only dockside gambling. The Alton Belle's win per passenger two weeks ago, $58, was a new high, Hutchinson said.

There were 12,356 passengers on the Belle that week, or about 60 percent capacity. Hutchinson said some of the Iowa boats have only been at about 20 percent capacity this month.

The state's tax share of that week's gambling revenues was $120,432 and the city of Alton took in another $48,381, Hutchinson added.

Shoppers should attempt to avoid carrying large numbers of packages or bundles.

Packages should not be left in the seat of a car, where they can be seen.

Carburetor paper should always be destroyed after making a purchase with a credit card.

Children should be taught to report to a cashier in the event they become separated from parents in a store. Never should children leave the store to look for parents on the parking lot.

Avoid car games and fraud — People should always ask to see official identification when asked for a donation on the street or in the mall.

Familiar charities are often the best ones to which contributions are made. Most have a brochure.

Charities that accept cash only should be suspect.

parents ... mainly because I'd been sitting there four hours," he told a crowd of about 100 at a reception in his honor at Charlie's Restaurant in Granite City on Monday night.

The television cameras caught tears of joy rolling down the cheeks of Schroeder's wife Ruth, and Schroeder himself had to fight to maintain his poise, his voice cracking on occasion.

Schroeder said Coolidge Principal Jim Jeffries, who also attended the award ceremony, had trouble containing his excitement as well.

"(Jeffries) was like a little kid ... jumping up and down and running around" following the announcement, Schroeder said.

About 200 friends, students, fellow educators and well-wishers gathered at Lambert-St. Louis International Airport and followed his limousine to the restaurant to welcome Schroeder back to town.

Schroeder received congratulatory messages from Illinois State Superintendent of Education Robert Leininger, Gov. Jim Edgar, Granite City Mayor Von Demers, School District 9 Superintendent of Schools Gil Walmsley and School Board President Dr. Mark Eavenson.

Eavenson recalled lying on the floor in the dark as a student in Schroeder's German class 20 years ago, as Schroeder related a story.

Jason Crites, a former student, said Schroeder "never lets boredom take over in the classroom."

He said Schroeder has taken his students outdoors or creative writing assignments, and has come to school dressed as a cowboy from assigned reading material.

"I always looked forward to going to his class every day," Crites, now a freshman at Granite City High School, said. "I'll have him in my memories when I'm lying on my death bed. He is an unforgettable man."

Schroeder and his students appear to have a kind of symbiotic relationship. He is motivated by his students' enthusiasm, and his students seem to draw enthusiasm from Schroeder's unique motivational techniques.

"I will do anything to keep my classroom interesting," Schroeder said Monday night.

He thanked his students who, in his words, "turn me on every day they walk into the classroom."

Schroeder seeks to make learning fun and sparks students' interest by surprising them with anything from the unusual to the absurd, students said. When boredom creeps in the telephone in the classroom rings with a call from "President George Bush" or some other celebrity.

Daydreaming is encouraged in Schroeder's classes.

"The popularity of (flu shots) has really grown because more people have become aware of it," McCulley said. "Also, many people just don't want the flu."

Older citizens and those with either weak immune systems or chronic disorders are encouraged to get an annual flu shot because they are more prone to catch the flu.

Unlike the cold, flu symptoms usually develop quickly. They include chills, a dry cough, fatigue, aching muscles and sometimes a headache and sick stomach. It usually runs one to two weeks and there is no treatment once you get it, said McCulley.

"It's almost going to have to run its course since it's a virus," he said.

However, drinking plenty of fluids, using a humidifier or vaporizer, and trying an antihistamine to unplug a stuffy head may make the symptoms more bearable, he said.

Schroeder's techniques to keep his students interested include unusual incentives for motivation.

For example, winners of a recent play-writing contest received a limousine ride to the superintendent's office for recognition. Another student received a limousine ride home from school at the end of the semester as a reward for his improved attendance.

Schroeder vowed to continue to "reach and stretch as far as I can so that one day my students can reach the stars."

Schroeder serves as an instructor at workshops on motivation techniques and communication skills.

He is actively involved in the community, serving such organizations as the American Cancer Society, the Lewis and Clark Living Association and the Association for the Protection of Animals. He is a past president of the Granite City District Library Board.

As part of his award, Schroeder will receive $25,000. Coolidge Junior High will also receive $25,000, and the school district will collect another $10,000.

Superintendent Walmsley said he is not yet sure how the district will expend its share of the prize money.

"We will consult with (Schroeder) and his creativity for input on how to spend the $35,000," Walmsley said.

Mayor Cruse captured the spirit of the evening best when he said, "I don't know how you can place a dollar value on what Ed Schroeder has accomplished ... It is a tremendous, tremendous honor for Granite City, and today, all Granite City citizens beam with pride because of your accomplishment."

"It is nice to let people know there is a small town in middle-America where something good is going on," Schroeder said.

Schroeder received the Illinois Distinguished Educator Award in 1988 and a Milken education award in 1990.

St. Clair County Board approves expansion of jail

By Bonita Tillman
Staff writer

A 40- to 80-bed expansion of the St. Clair County jail was approved Monday when County Board members agreed to extend a tort liability tax rate for several years.

The county's Ad Hoc Jail Committee recommended the action to alleviate overcrowding in the facility. The county has been threatened with a lawsuit by the Illinois Department of Corrections because it does not provide inmates the legally required space.

The special tax rate, which is used to fund the county's liability insurance, was scheduled to expire in 1992. Monday's action will extend that tax rate indefinitely and bonds will be sold to help cover the cost of the jail expansion.

East St. Louis board member Richard "R.J." Krause said the jail, but not at the expense of East St. Louis taxpayers who already bear a heavy tax burden.

"I represent East St. Louis and our taxes really went up. We can't get anything done by the county because we're a home rule city," he said. "We had one area out there flooded and the people's taxes went up three times anyway."

Krause, who opposed the measure, suggested East St. Louis be left out of the extension because of the cost. However, the comment opened up a new avenue of debate.

Freeburg board member Frank Heiligenstein suggested every township pay a user fee for jail services.

"I'd be willing to compromise with Mr. Krause if we assess every township based on the domicile of the prisoners," he said. "Freeburg residents pay a higher proportion of taxes to the county than East St. Louis and we probably have one person at the jail."

Will McGaughey, another East St. Louis board member, said city tax rates are the real culprit of higher tax bills. He suggested working to lower those rates.

"If you look at your tax bill, it's not going to the county general fund," he said. "I don't see this affecting East St. Louis that much."

"Our town is riddled with crime, but we've got people on the cold floor over at the jail. They do have the right to be treated humanely," McGaughey said.

The county has little option on whether it will expand the jail because of the potential liability it faces daily, said Dr. Robert Roylance, a Belleville board member and member of the Ad Hoc Jail Committee.

"We've studied this carefully and have the support of the law enforcement community. We are facing lawsuits and tremendous problems if we don't," he said.

Voting against the tax extension with Krause were County Board members Lonnie Mosley and Calvin Humphries of East St. Louis.

Details of the jail expansion, such as the number of new beds, the specific cost and years the tax extension will be necessary, will be determined in a few months, said County Board Chairman John Baricovic.

Work churns up old paddlewheeler

The ancient remains of a side-wheeler riverboat that may have plied the river more than 140 years ago have history buffs brimming with enthusiasm.

A 10-by-20-foot section of a steamboat was pulled from the Mississippi River mud near Alton during work on piers for the new Clark Bridge.

"We're thrilled. That was the golden age of steamboating, perhaps a little before. It's a great find," said Charlene Gill, retired president of the Alton Museum of History and Art Inc.

Gill said steamboats used to run mail routes between Alton and other river towns.

Workers unearthed the remnant Nov. 14, Illinois Department of Transportation Engineer Earl Doerr said. It was found under 12 feet of sand, 200 feet from the Missouri shore.

Doerr said the section of boat appeared to predate 1850. U.S. Army Corps of Engineers officials are trying to determine the precise age of the discovery and have removed it to a corps repair yard in St. Louis.

Workers with Massman and

Ben Hur construction companies found the wooden piece weighing several tons after a crane got snagged, Doerr said.

Senior-dominated grapplers among area's best

By Brian Henry
Correspondent

By all appearances, the Warrior wrestling team should be one of the best in the area this winter. But coach Mike Garland isn't going to let his team rest on their pre-season laurels.

"I've been telling the guys since practice started (Nov. 11) that the fight's not over," said Garland, 79-36-1 in four seasons of dual meets. "It's nice to be thought of like that, but we can't be complacent and just expect to be successful because of what we did last year."

GC wrestling

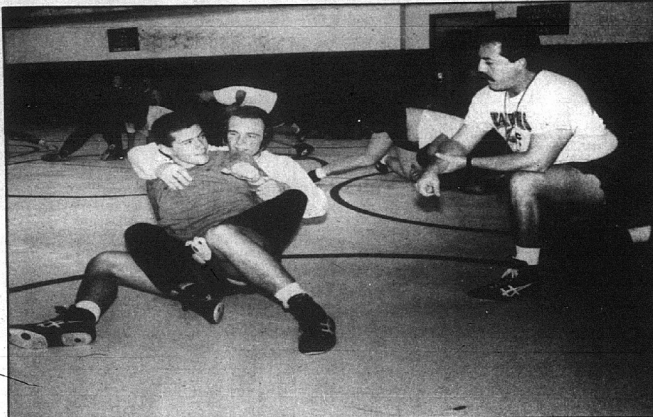

What they did last year was go 18-3 in dual meets with almost an all-underclassman lineup. The only significant loss to graduation was 189-pounder Mark Cotter. Ryan King, Jerry Heuschman and Chris Hoffstot all qualified for the state tournament as juniors along with sophomore Pat Scheffer. It was King's second straight trip to state.

King, Hoffstot and Scheffer were all sectional champions. Scheffer, King and Jerry Heuschman all won their regional meets. Most of the team's strength was in the lower and middle weights last year, but Garland believes the upper weights now are as strong as he's seen.

King (35-4 last season) went to state at 112 pounds. He was 32-12 as a sophomore 103-pounder when he went to state in 1990. Scheffer, now a junior, was 33-9 at 103 pounds last year and was the only Warrior who survived more than one match at state. Those two anchor the lower weights when the Warriors open the season tonight on the road in a quad meet against Centralia, Carbondale and Edwardsville in Centralia. King, now a senior, should see plenty of time at 119. Senior Chris Haas will probably step in at 112 when King gets bumped up.

"We're going to have to move some kids around," said Garland. "I hope we can put Haas in one spot this year. Last year, he took his lumps when we had to move him all around."

Seniors Dan Hicks and Mark McKechan were at 125 and 157, respectively, last season and will be at those spots again to start this year. Hicks was below 500 for the season, but advanced to the sectional. McKechan advanced to the sectional as a sophomore and was 16-7 last season.

"If Hicks can improve this year as much as he did last year, he's going to be a key for us," said Garland. "Mark had some problems making weight, but he'll bounce back this year."

Seniors Hoffstot (36-4-1) and Jerry Heuschman (36-6) should be at 135 and 140 again, respectively, but either one could also move up to 145 as senior Jeff Heuschman could move up considerably from his 145 spot. The Warrior football team's center has bulked up a lot since last winter and could wrestle at 171 or even 189 this year.

"If we're going to win meets, we'll have to do it early in the lower and middle weights," said Garland. "We're traditionally tough in the lower weights, but our upper weights are as good as we've had."

Senior Scott Simon (16-16-1) will return at 152 and could possibly see some time at 160. Last year's 160-pounder, Russ Buchek, transferred to Maryette High School over the summer. Junior Andy Richards (16-11) will be back at 171. Pat Jessee was slated to wrestle at 189, but a knee injury will sideline him for an indefinite time.

Jeff Heuschman (17-11-1 at 145 last year) will likely step in there. Senior Al Willard (28-9), another sectional qualifier last season, will be back in the heavyweight class.

"Richards is in his second year of wrestling at varsity and Simon is in his third, so they've got some experience on their side," said Garland. "Willard could have a good year."

Local stalwarts Cahokia and Belleville West return strong squads. The Comanches, who placed fourth in the state team tournament in 1991, thumped the Warriors in the team regional final and are No. 1 in the Suburban Journals pre-season coaches poll. West is 10th while the Warriors are fifth.

"All 13 guys are going to have good years if we're going to make it," said Garland. "West

Kirkwood up next for 2-0-1 skaters

By Dave Whaley
Staff writer

The Warrior hockey team is undefeated and heading into a big early-season test. Granite City blasted Francis Howell 9-1 in the home opener Monday at Wilson Park to improve to 2-0-1. Next up for the Warriors is an 8:45 p.m. home game next Monday against Kirkwood, the defending Mid-State Club Hockey Association champions.

"That will be a big test for us," said Warrior coach Jake Hinterser. "But our kids are really playing well. The defense is moving the puck up and out of the zone quickly and the kids are adjusting to my system pretty quickly."

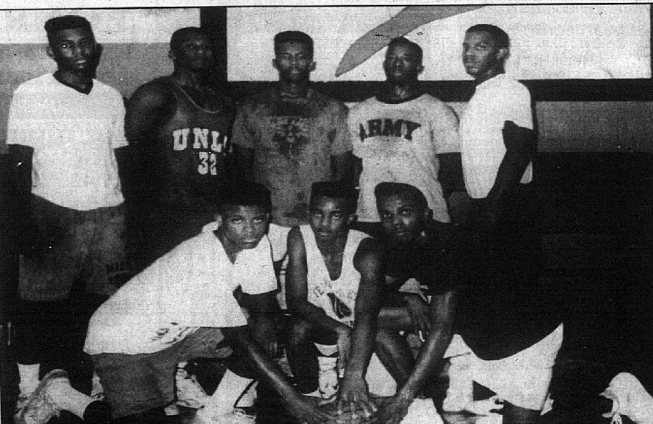

GC hockey

Granite City blanked McCluer 3-0 on Friday at the North County before expanding against Francis Howell. Mike Jaros, Chris Goclan and Mike Naeve each had two goals Monday. Jaros added three assists and Naeve also had one. The other goals came from Mark Neminger, Nathan Weaver and David Napier. The Warriors outshot Francis Howell 37-11.

Rick Whyers and Chad St. Peters had two assists each. Other assists went to Craig Wagner, Jason Crites, Derek Zirkelbach, Danny Thomas and Greg Obcina. Brent Golden and Mike Hatfield split time in goal, with Golden having two goals and three minutes left in the game to spoil a second straight shutout.

"Francis Howell wasn't very strong," said Hinterser. "We came right out and got six goals in the first period and they realized they couldn't skate with us. The second period was a little slow for us because we got a bunch of penalties and didn't play short-handed. That makes it tough to keep your continuity with your lines."

Trojans talented if grades stay up

By Mike Kelly
Staff writer

The Trojans have climbed the ladder of respectability. Now they have to keep the ladder from falling.

After winning only four games two years ago, Madison returned to its old form and produced a 20-1 record last season. But the dream of a third state championship turned sour at the Charleston Super-Sectional. The Trojans blew a 19-point lead and dropped an 82-81 decision to Effingham St. Anthony in overtime.

Madison basketball

"I couldn't sleep for months after that game," Madison coach Al Collins said. "The first half lead we had meant nothing. I've seen bigger leads than that disappear. Fool trouble killed us. It took away our aggressiveness."

But Collins feels he has the weapons to at least reach the sweet 16 again. "A lot of people might overlook us early in the season," he said. "But we have a strong supporting cast. We could sneak up on a few teams and create some problems."

Senior Ron Lott (5-10), who had a 11.2 scoring average last season, is the lone returning starter. He's supported by 6-3 junior Ron Williams (6.0 points, 4.5 rebounds) and 6-2 senior Willie Woodson (5.9 points, 3.2 rebounds).

"I feel we can go inside with great success," Collins said. "Ron has strength and a quick release. Willie is a great leaper and he's improved his jump

Jenny Baker relaxes poolside with her second-place medal.

First — no, second

Last-minute score change leaves Baker runner-up

By Dave Whaley
Staff writer

Last week at this time, Jenny Baker would have been thrilled with second place. After the events of last weekend, second is a bittersweet feeling.

Baker, a senior at Granite City High School, finished her high school diving career Saturday afternoon by taking second place in the state finals at New Trier High School in Winnetka. She had taken third a year ago and 1990's silver medalist had graduated. Rockford Auburn's Carrie Zarse was returning and was a heavy favorite to win her third state title.

"That's what happened, but not before some confusion. A computer error left Baker thinking she had won it all — for about five minutes."

"It was the greatest feeling in the world for five minutes," said Baker. "Then it really hurt when I found out I was second. It was like somebody was teasing me or leading me on."

"It was the greatest feeling in the world for five minutes. Then it really hurt when I found out I was second. It was like somebody was teasing me or leading me on," Baker said. "I didn't have my best meet at the sectional, even though I won that. But I couldn't have done any better at state. And I'm really satisfied with how I improved each year. I know some other divers who went back and forth (in the final standings) from year to year. I'm happy I got better each multiplying that by the pre-assigned degree of difficulty for that particular dive. Zarse's score on her final dive was originally given a 2.2 DD, when it actually should have been a 2.4. Baker had made a 2.3 dive on her last of 11 dives in the tournament.

As a result, Zarse finished with 434.35 points and Baker had 432.85. Zarse, who won state as a freshman, junior and senior while placing second as a sophomore, was somewhat down from the 457 points she had last year. But Baker was up 65 points from her junior performance.

"It was one of my best meets ever," she said. "And Carrie wasn't on like she usually is. But the degree of difficulty made the difference. She has the coaching and the facilities year-round to make dives like that."

"Jenny had Carrie beat on points," said Baker's coach, Gayle McCormick. "I had no idea it would be this close. But this should really open a lot of doors for Jenny. I feel bad for myself that this is her last year. It might be a while before I have another Jenny Baker."

What Baker was happiest about was the consistent improvement she made over her high school career. She placed 30th at state as a freshman, then placed seventh, third and second in succeeding years.

"I try not to worry about places," Baker said. "I didn't have my best meet at the sectional, even though I won that. But I couldn't have done any better at state. And I'm really satisfied with how I improved each year. I know some other divers who went back and forth (in the final standings) from year to year. I'm happy I got better each

Strong frontcourt will help Lady Warriors prosper

By Brian Henry
Correspondent

Although the Lady Warrior basketball team lost its backcourt to graduation, third-year coach Allen Lobdell believes the 1991-92 team will be better.

Granite City finished 11-11 last winter with Addie Lenzi and Andrea Cline at guard. With their graduations, Lobdell has even concocted a system which at times will not involve any guards.

Girls basketball

Seniors Jennifer Wheeler and Tiffany Winters will be joined by sophomore Kami Kessel as the top three guards this year. Wheeler was Lenzi's understudy last year and this is Winters' first year in the program. She and Kessel will also see plenty of action at the junior varsity level.

"The three guards that we do have are good dribblers and can handle the ball well," said Lobdell, 29-17 in his first two seasons. "They lack experience under pressure. We're going to try to get Tiffany and Kami some work at JV."

While inexperience is a factor in the backcourt, the Lady Warriors appear solid up front. Senior Karen Sykes has been on the varsity since her freshman season and led the team with 15.6 points and 7.4 rebounds last year while shooting 52.7 percent from the field. Sykes, a 5-11 forward, will be counted on heavily, but she'll get plenty of support from 6-4 sophomore center Jamie Cavanaugh, who averaged 12.8 points and 6.6 rebounds while shooting a solid 58.5 percent as a freshman.

Junior forward Stephanie Kult (5-9) averaged 5.3 points and 4.0 rebounds as a sophomore. Dana Dresch, a 5-11 junior, will also be a big part of the front line.

"Dresch and Cavanaugh will make a really deadly combo," said Lobdell. "I'm going to try to make Jamie a bigger part of the offense. They still look for Karen. She will still get the ball and get her shots. I'm not worried about her."

Lobdell figures the Lady Warriors will be able to put points on the board, so defense will be a top priority.

"We're going to stick with the pressure defense," said Lobdell. "That's my No. 1 idea that I try to get across."

Size will be an advantage. Lobdell can put 5-8 senior Jennifer Wortham on the floor with Dresch, Cavanaugh, Sykes and Kult and play without a true guard.

"The forwards are going to have to help bring the ball upcourt," said Lobdell. "We're going to pass it up the court instead of just dribbling. Our plan is to go with one guard if we're up against a pressure defense."

Granite City will be tested early. The Lady Warriors open in Madison on Monday (Granite City lost to the Trojanettes in last year's opener at home), then open at home against Edwardsville next Wednesday. The Tigers are fifth in the Suburban Journals pre-season coaches poll and eliminated Granite City in the regional finals last year.

After that, Belleville West comes in for a 4 p.m. game Dec. 7 in the opening card of the four-match Granite City Superfans Shootout. The Maroons, eighth in the poll, were undefeated last year until losing to East St. Louis in the Granite City Sectional final. Granite City hasn't beaten West in several years.

"It's going to be a real test," said Lobdell. "Depending on how we survive that first week and a half, we could surprise some people. We're going to make some people take notice."

Belleville East and West are again the teams to beat in the Southwestern Conference. The Lancers might have the early jump as the Maroons have several players on the rebound from winning the state volleyball title again. Led by senior twins Camie and Carrie Bechtold, Alton figures to be stronger. East St. Louis had four potential starters quit the team in pre-season and figures to be on the downswing.

Senior Karen Sykes is Granite City's leading returning scorer.

"I think the conference will be as tough as the '89-'90 season," said Lobdell. "No conference games will be easy. Any one of these teams can beat any of the others on a given night."

"I believe we'll be better than '500. We're much improved from last year. This is the kind of team that could be the best we've ever had."

shot. Those guys will make Lot's job a little easier.

"Sure, he's the guy we'll go to in the crunch, but he won't have to do it all by himself," Collins said.

Collins is also expecting big things from 6-3 junior Douglas Griggs.

"Douglas is going to push someone out of a starting job," he said. "He blocks out very well, he's a good rebounder and he's extremely confident. He's our most improved player."

Sophomore 5-8 point guard Eugene Williams and 6-1 senior Cernyn Macon will handle the backcourt chores. Junior Robert Weathers (5-10) and 6-2 sophomore Emil Allen round out the attack.

"We're young, but I feel our lineup is much stronger and deeper than last season," Collins said. "We have three people with experience (Lot, Ron Williams and Woodson), but the rest of our kids are good jumpers and great athletes."

"We have a tough schedule ahead of us, and we might have problems getting to 500. But I feel we'll be just as good as we were last year by regional time."

Madison's biggest obstacle might be grades. The District 12 school board requires all student-athletes to maintain a 1.5 grade point average each week — with no failing grades — during the season.

"That rule could destroy our chemistry," Collins said. "Instead of preparing seven or eight guys into our scheme, we'll have to prepare 10 to 12 guys just in case some of our people aren't eligible to play."

"Fans only see the wins, but chemistry is extremely important in the makeup of a team. Shuffling people in and out all the time isn't the answer."

Therefore, Collins is stressing a serious attitude in the classroom.

"We're providing tutoring for our kids," Collins said. "If I don't think the idea because they feel dumb needing academic help. But everyone needs tutoring sometimes."

Placing second to Zarse is nothing to be ashamed of, Zarse is graduating from high school next month and will start college at the University of Michigan just after Christmas. She has a full diving scholarship there with coach Dick Kimball, the U.S. Olympic diving coach.

"It's a little easier to take finishing second to someone like that," said Baker.

While the swimming and diving meet is dominated by northern schools, Baker continued to be the people's choice.

"It was really neat to see and hear a lot of the coaches and fans up there cheering me on," she said. "There was even a guy with an Auburn shirt (Zarse's school) who came up and

"This should really open a lot of doors for Jenny. I feel badly for myself that this is her last year. It might be a while before I have another Jenny Baker."

— Gayle McCormick
Baker's coach

encouraged me before one of my dives.

"Everyone else has all their family and friends there, and for me it was my parents, my brother and his girlfriend. But after making a dive and coming up to hear a lot of the Chicago people cheering for me really helped. Baker was ahead from the third dive of Friday's preliminaries right up until the final score was adjusted. But while the final few moments of her high school career were a bit of a setback, the future is bright.

Baker is being recruited by several colleges. She did not sign a letter of intent during the early signing period Nov. 13-20, so she won't make a final decision until spring, although she could make a verbal commitment at any time.

Leading the list are Illinois, North Carolina and Auburn. "I was at a camp at North Carolina (Chapel Hill) this summer," said Baker. "I really got along well with the coach (Randy Emerson) and that is beautiful country out there. The sky really is Carolina blue."

Baker won't be on the cheerleading squad at GCHS this winter. She wants to devote more time to diving, something she hasn't done as much of in past winters. An all-star for the third straight year, she also hopes to attend the all-state banquet next month.

"But it's on a Wednesday night," said Baker's mother, Judy. "That makes it kind of tough to get there."

One would think there would be more consideration for the young lady who was the state diving champion — at least for a while.

"I wouldn't change anything about my high school career," said Baker. "Except for the last five minutes."

Zirkelbach opened the scoring in Friday's game with assists from Navee and St. Peters. St. Peters and Navee scored insurance goals in the third period as Jaros and Weaver picked up assists. Golden played the first two periods and Hatfield finished the shutout as Granite City outshot McCluer 36-10.

"Their goalie was very good or we might have had some more goals," said Hinterser. "We also have to work on getting a few more of our shots on target."

Kevin Sitton will have to sit out the Kirkwood game. He got an automatic one-game suspension Monday after becoming involved in an altercation with a Francis Howell player.

"I'll take part of the blame for that," said Hinterser. "I need to warn the kids not to get too involved in much of that rough stuff if it's going to cost us. We need to be at full strength for a team like Kirkwood."

Mance-40 years

A surprise 40th anniversary party held in honor of Nick and Ann Mance of Granite City on Oct. 5 was hosted by their children, spouses and grandchildren at Croatian Home in Madison.

THE LAW AND YOU

BY RICK REED
Attorney At Law

If a person comes onto your property and is bitten by your dog, are you responsible for the injuries he sustains? A claim by an injured party is governed by the Animal Control Act in this situation, and this law provides that four elements must be proved by the plaintiff in order to recover.

First, the injury must be caused by an animal owned by the defendant; secondly, there must be no provocation of the animal by the injured party; thirdly, the person injured must have been acting peacefully; and fourthly, the injured person must have been in a place where he had a legal right to be.

In one recent case, an eight year old boy went to a friend's house to play with a classmate. While he was walking up the driveway of the property owner, he was greeted by the defendant's dog, Roscoe. The eight year old (Paul) said, "Hi Roscoe," and he began to pet the dog. After approximately 30 seconds, Paul looked down at the dog, at which time Roscoe jumped up and bit Paul on the face.

Paul's father took him to the local emergency room. The wounds were treated and stitched, but a few days later, Paul developed an infection about the face and neck. The wounds were drained, and his face was restitched. Paul was left with permanent facial scarring.

At trial, the issue was whether Paul provoked the dog. The Appellate Court ultimately held that mere presence on private property does not constitute provocation no matter how the animal interprets the visitor's movements. The Court also held that greeting and petting a dog do not constitute provocation of the animal so as to deny the injured party's right to recover.

In this case, the Court decided that Paul's conduct was peaceful and involved no provocation of the animal. Since the driveway was being used by the plaintiff for the purposes of a social visit, he was also in a place where he had a legal right to be when the dog bit him. Under these circumstances, all four elements were proved by the plaintiff, and the Appellate Court found that he was entitled to recover damages for his injuries.

Diabetes support group may be formed here

St. Elizabeth Medical Center's Education Resources Department is asking for input from the community on creating a new Diabetes Support Group.

"Our previous Diabetic Support Group stopped meeting in December 1990," said Kathy Haarmann, RN, BSN, diabetes educator and patient education coordinator at SEMC. "However, from comments I've heard in the monthly Take Charge of Your Diabetes class, I think there is renewed interest in a support group."

The support group was designed to help those with diabetes, their families and friends," Haarmann said.

"It can help individuals recently diagnosed with diabetes adapt to the disease and treatment regimen, and also help individuals who have had diabetes for some time learn about new treatments and techniques. We are very interested in hearing what members of the community think about the idea."

Those interested in learning more about the Diabetes Support Group are asked to call St. Elizabeth Medical Center at 798-3201.

Entertaining Chouteau Township seniors were: Cissie Pingel, left, a native born Hawaiian; Nera Schottle, an Elm Wood resident; Tim Blythe, administrator; and Corretta Farrell, entertainment coordinator.

Wahinies perform for seniors

The Hawaiian Wahinies, a group of Women from the Chouteau Township Senior Citizens Club, have been performing for their organization for five years. They recently performed for the residents of Elm Wood Care Center at the center's Hawaiian Luau and danced for about 30 minutes. After the performance, the leader of the group, Cissie Pingel, showed the residents and members of the entertainment staff some of the moves used in hula dancing.

14 garden clubs at President's Council Day

Fourteen clubs of District V of The Garden Clubs of Illinois Inc. were represented at President's Council Day at Central Christian Church in Granite City. The Cloverview Garden Club served as host club for the event.

Veronica Williamson, president, gave the welcoming address with the response by Gerry Thorp, vice director. District V Director Bea Halford presided over the meeting.

Sixty-three members, attending represented the following garden clubs: Cahokia, Cloverview, Collinsville, Creative Gardeners, Edwardsville, Fairview Heights, Garden Study, Green Oaks, Holiday Shores, Lakeview, Mascoutah, St. Clair County, Trenton Tumbleweeds and Wood River Area.

Halford gave a short resume of how each one had contributed to the district as she pinned corsages on the following past directors present: Lillian Heberer, Marian Nelson, Ruth Buesch, Mary Ellen Lindsey, Virginia Kaulhold, Dorothy Chamberlain and Trish Haislar. Notes were read from Mrs. Harry Rosinos, Luella Klotz and Hazel English, who were unable to attend.

of Irene Shea, a past director, and Penny Price, a member of Cahokia Garden Club.

This requires several years of studying, hard work and attending symposiums. The next step is a master judge. Ethelyn Boyd is a master judge and Trish Haislar at a student judge.

For the program, Frank Holder of the Missouri Botanical Garden gave a wealth of information on the planting and growing of annuals and perennials, followed by a question and answer period. For your first nine months, life is usually pretty comfortable. You're carried everywhere you go. You don't have to worry about eating. And you're always nice and warm. But then you have to move out. If you're lucky, you end up in another warm home. But if you're like a lot of needy families in Illinois, there's no escaping the cold.

To make matters worse, state government aid to needy families has dropped 40 percent in just one year.

Which is why they're depending on

Matthew 4:4 ... 'It is written, Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of Many persons today deny that the Bible is God's Word. Many arguments are brought forth that it cannot be. However, they cannot deny that this world and the people in it would be much better off if we all lived by it!

God's Word must be believed. We must have faith in it. Faith is the only thing that will bring it to life and make it work for us. Jesus defeated Satan and all his power by simply saying, "It is written."

Penny-a-day drive planned at Parkview

Students at Parkview Elementary School in Granite City are being asked to bring a penny a day to school from Dec. 2 through Dec. 20 in order to support the annual Salvation Army Tree of Lights campaign.

According to Nancy Marti, Parkview principal, the penny drive is designed to replace the school's usual canned-goods collection.

"We have no space to store a large amount of canned goods in our school, as all rooms are in use," Marti said. "We anticipate that the money collected will purchase many canned goods for the Salvation Army Christmas baskets."

In addition to the pupils' donations, Marti has issued three other challenges in the drive.

The first challenge is for each teacher to match the class total each day the class collects a penny per pupil. The second challenge is for the principal to match the school total each day all of the classes collect a penny a pupil.

The third challenge is for the community to match either a class, or the school as a whole, each day a penny a pupil is collected. Marti said this gives a parent a chance to match a child's homework total or a business a chance to match the school's total.

The current enrollment of Parkview is 460 pupils, making the 15-day potential total $690. Kokomo Tans and Butch Peterson Chevrolet, Buick and Geo have already agreed to match the school's donation.

Individuals or businesses wishing to match a class or the school may contact Marti at 931-5700.

Donation for Fitness Trail — The Tri-City Shrine Club has donated $100 for the Wilson Park Fitness Trail. From left are Jerry Pragacz, club vice president; Dennis Wilmseyer, Fitness Trail committee chairman; Gary Ingraham, president of the Shrine Club; and James "Red" Childers of the club. The committee has raised $12,500 in the last eight months, bringing the total to $32,500 toward a goal of $80,000. To make a donation, persons may call the park office at 877-3059.

Health screenings slated next week

St. Elizabeth Medical Center's CardioPulmonary Rehab and Prevention Program is offering cholesterol testing, blood pressure checks and blood sugar screenings at two locations.

Each test includes a professional consultation with a registered nurse or a registered dietitian on the results.

The December health screenings will be offered at:

10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 5, at the Collinsville Schnucks, 501 Beltline Road, Collinsville. Participants will be seen on a first-come, first-served basis. No appointments are needed.

2 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 18, at the Wellness Center, 2103 Iowa St., Granite City. Appointments are required. Persons may call 798-3201 to reserve a convenient time.

Cholesterol level screenings, blood pressure tests and professional consultation on the results will be offered at both locations for $7. Blood sugar tests, blood pressure tests and professional consultation on the results will be offered for $1.

The National Institute of Health recommends that all adults age 20 and over have their blood cholesterol levels checked, because the chances of developing heart disease increase in proportion to the amount the cholesterol is elevated.

Tapes show roots of TV news

By Ian MacBryde
Correspondent

Many of us who have decried the state of what passes for television journalism have suggested that it is a fairly recent development, but the recent discovery of ancient tapes in a cave in the Middle East now suggest that the decline dates back to Biblical times. Here's the tape of a newscast several thousand years ago.

Anchor 1: "Good evening, and welcome to News at X. The drought continues to be relieved as torrential rains fell for the 35th consecutive day throughout the known world."

Anchor 2: "But more about that later. In our top story, the megastar group Salome and the Vells have a new hit. Their latest release, a six-cassette album of music for lute and lyre, has sold out in bazaars everywhere. And Salome herself has been arrested in Gomorrah—the charge: obscene lyrics."

Anchor 1: Meanwhile, elsewhere in Gomorrah, police have busted a couple and charged them with producing obscene hieroglyphics. We'll be talking to them later.

Anchor 2: Right now let's go to the WeatherCave where meteorologist Hi Pressure will tell us about all this funky rain we've been having. Hi, wet enough for ducks?

Hi: Well, yes, folks. Actually, thousands of people are drowning even as we speak, and...

Anchor 1: Whoa, whoa, Hi, remember what the consultant said. People drowning, that's a downer. Hi. Tell us when the rain will stop.

Hi: Well, right before we lost power because of flooding the radar said about five more days—and that should be enough to drown everything on earth.

Anchor 1: Right, thanks, Hi. That government stinks about the drowning? Well, we don't pay much attention to what the government says unless it's election time or a scandal. We'll let you know, of course, if anything important comes of it.

Anchor 2: Now, our new reporter Missy Theopist has found a man who is taking this all a little too seriously, maybe. This guy is (chuckle) building an Ark. And Missy has a live report. Tell us about it, Missy.

Missy: (giggle) That's Ark (giggle) not Arch (giggle). And he plans to get two of every kind of animal on this Ark and float them away. We talked with him, live, earlier.

Missy: Tell us, Mr. Noah, will these be like two animals of (giggle) opposite sexes? And have you thought about what will happen when they all get together on this little Ark?

Noah: That's the idea, Missy. I hope that...

Missy: Wow, that's the idea? Well, that's a scoop. We talked with a representative from a conservative think-tank about the (giggle) possibilities. Ms. Laughey, what does your group think about putting all these things of the opposite sexes together?

Laughey: That's Mrs. Laughey, and don't you forget it. We, of course, oppose it, and we think it's a product of these liberal times and the liberal media that would even consider...

Missy: Thank you, Mrs. Laughey. Well, there you have it, folks.

Late Fred MacMurray made share of interesting movies

By Mason Wiley
Correspondent

The TV generation fondly remembers the late Fred MacMurray as the corny, somewhat befuddled dad he played for more than a decade on "My Three Sons." But the actor had a more interesting film career than his Steve Douglas role would suggest.

Fortunately, most of his choicest work on his video. His first hits in the late 1930s were romantic comedies with the likes of Carole Lombard and Claudette Colbert as his leading ladies. But few of them are available as of yet.

Katharine Hepburn is his romantic interest in "Alice Adams," (1935, Republic, $14.95), the adaptation of Booth Tarkington's novel about an over-eager social climber in a small town. Pauline Kael raved of Hepburn: "Her Alice is one of the few authentic American movie heroines." MacMurray plays the rich guy she wins in the end, a conventional Hollywood resolution during the Depression. Leave the heroine with sudden economic security, and everybody could dream her future for her.

One of his later comedy romps with Colbert was based on another best seller, Betty MacDonald's "The Egg and I" (1947, MCA/Universal, $29.98), a precursor to another beloved American sitcom, "Green Acres." Colbert is the rich city girl adapted to life on MacMurray's chicken farm. This crowd-pleaser introduced the Ma and Pa Kettle characters played by the great Marjorie Main and Percy Kilbride, who would go on to star in a popular series of films revolving around their hayseed couple.

With his all-American appeal, MacMurray was perfect for the needs of devious writer-director Billy Wilder, who used the actor twice to portray what was then called a "heel." The first time was in the quintessential film noir, "Double Indemnity" (1944, MCA/Universal, $14.95). Talk about hard-boiled, the James M. Cain novel was adapted by none other than Raymond Chandler. Best of all, Barbara Stanwyck is allowed to be totally evil, and she knows how. MacMurray plays an insurance agent who tries to pull off a murder with a client's wife, played by Stanwyck—the victim being the client.

In the romantic comedy "The Apartment" (1960, MGM/UA, $19.98), Wilder casts MacMurray as a Manhattan heartbreaker, a sexy executive who treats Shirley MacLaine's adorable elevator operator like dirt, then retreats to the security of his family in suburbia. Along comes Jack Lemmon as her unlikely knight in shining armor. This rich comedy resonates with as much truth today as it did in 1960, when it won the Oscar for Best Picture.

Somewhat, the acting branch of the academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences never thought about nominating MacMurray for an Oscar, even when he appeared in classics. He didn't earn a single mention from the academy throughout his 40 years in film.

Among MacMurray's other standout roles is his naval officer in the all-star film version of Herman Wouk's Pulitzer Prize-winning novel, "The Caine Mutiny" (1954, RCA/Columbia, $19.95). MacMurray is the charming coward who starts the crew thinking about how weird Humphrey Bogart's Captain Queeg is.

It was the part of a bumbling patriarch in the Disney fantasy "The Shaggy Dog" (1959, Disney, $69.95) and its sequel "Son of Flubber" (1963, Disney, $69.95).

Despite weather, Christmas tree supply in area is ample

(The following was written by Paula J. Voss-McAuliffe of Southern Illinois University's College of Agriculture.)

Christmas tree buyers may expect an ample supply of quality conifers this holiday season despite an offbeat weather year, according to forester Paul L. Roth.

"The weather conditions over the past year were very unusual," said Roth, professor of forestry at Southern Illinois University at Carbondale.

"However, trees harvested for this year's Christmas crop should be of average to good quality."

A soggy spring and extremely dry summer may have caused certain tree species to take on a "leggy" appearance, Roth said. The wet spring caused many Christmas trees in Southern Illinois to grow taller than they ordinarily would in one season.

Growth spurts left some of them denser toward the middle and longer and leaner at the top and periphery.

With proper trimming and management, the flaws would barely be noticeable, he said.

An early-fall cold snap didn't seem to dent Southern Illinois' Christmas harvest crop, according to Roth.

"Most of the trees ready for harvest were mature enough to withstand the sudden drop in temperatures," he said.

"However, some of the newly planted trees may have suffered damage that will show up next spring during the growing season."

Roth said consumers should expect to pay about the same for locally grown trees during this season as last year.

He said consumers should try to buy trees grown in Illinois or surrounding states to be sure of freshness and quality. Trees bought from local growers should easily last up to one month if properly cared for, he said.

One rule to follow, he said, is to cut an additional inch from the stump when you get the tree home. This opens the tree's water ducts so that water may flow easily up to branches and needles. Trees tend to form a seal of sap at the bottom of the stump after harvest to prevent moisture loss.

Belle owners deny labor charge

Alton Riverboat Gambling Partnership Inc. has denied a National Labor Relations Board complaint that it engaged in unfair labor practices to assist the Seafarers International Union.

In a written reply filed with the NLRB, attorneys for the management of the Alton Belle Riverboat Casino also said the rival Hotel Employees and Restaurant Employees Union, which sparked the complaint, had ignored offers to meet with employees.

In response to several specific charges that boat management assisted the Seafarers, the company pleaded ignorance and denied violating the law.

The reply contends the complaint isn't specific enough for the partnership to respond and should be dismissed.

However, the company denied charges that it had interfered with, restrained or coerced employees to join the Seafarers.

The partnership contends that in August and September the Hotel Employees union representatives violated the employees' rights so "as to disqualify (the union) from any possible relief in this matter."

The reply also states that from June through September the boat management offered access to the Hotel Employees union "equal to any such access granted to the Seafarers International Union, but such request was either ignored or not pursued."

The company also says it denied several requests by the Seafarers to enter the premises to solicit employees and on numerous occasions granted access to the Hotel Employees.

Recognition of the Seafarers resulted from employees' signed authorization cards, and the management "lawfully negotiated a collective bargaining agreement" with that union, the reply states.

A hearing on the complaint has been scheduled before an administrative law judge in St. Louis Jan. 13.

About 150 employees of the Alton Belle and the Alton Landing floating dock complex, primarily holding food and beverage and maritime jobs, are covered by the contract with the Seafarers.

The Hotel Employees union is seeking a new union election.

Americans uneducated about money matters, survey finds

By Roger McGrath
Correspondent

Americans are woefully uneducated about economic, financial and pocketbook matters. So say economists, business executives and investment advisers, who have long complained about this problem. The Consumer Federation of America has traced this educational failing to the nation's high schools.

In a survey last spring, the Washington, D.C., lobbying group asked high school seniors questions about buying a car, renting an apartment, acquiring a credit card and other everyday financial topics. Students correctly answered 42 percent of the multiple-choice questions — a few percentage points better than if they'd guessed.

Only 14 percent knew the difference between a credit card and a debit card, the federation reported. (A debit card is like a check; the cash is transferred from your account to the retailer's.)

"It's disheartening to hear that," said Thomas Fayollet, teacher of a personal finance course at Riverview Gardens High School.

How uneducated are we? Couples enrolled in a personal finance course laughed when instructor Ellie Williams began talking about money handling after the children leave home.

"The kids never leave," returning whenever they've stumbled into a financial pitfall, students told her.

Those grown children failed the first test of fiscal responsibility. "They hadn't saved six months of living expenses," said Williams, a partner in Moneywise, a financial education firm. Those reserves would keep them afloat while overcoming financial adversity.

"It's just the sorry state of our society" that Americans, young and old, know so little about personal finance, said Bob Stuart, superintendent of the Edwardsville School District.

Too much of our financial education is learned at the School of Hard Knocks, local observers maintain. Unfortunately, "some people never learn the lesson," said Art Weiss, of Weiss, Yess & Co., an accounting firm.

Not knowing the basics of money handling can create all kinds of problems. J. Nie-nann, financial analyst for Hun-leigh Securities, pointed out one common problem. "People who don't become educated are prime targets for fraud," she said.

It was the potential for fraud that prompted Fayollet to organize Riverview Gardens' personal finance course 15 years ago. The impetus: Missouri had cut the age of consent to 18, which led St. Louis County Prosecuting Attorney Courtney Goodman to ask schools to teach seniors about contracts so they wouldn't be taken advantage of.

Today, Fayollet's course covers contracts, handling checking and savings accounts, buying and selling a car, stocks and life insurance, and comparison shopping, a topic his students know little about. "They don't know the right questions to ask," a failing that Fayollet hopes to rectify with his one-semester class.

How much financial teaching students retain isn't known. However, several former students have told Fayollet that, while they hadn't understood a concept while studying it, the information proved valuable later when they bought a car, an insurance policy and for other transactions.

Children's Christmas books can fit any reader's taste

By Jane Cosby
Correspondent

When recommending children's gift books for Christmas, I feel like a kid in a candy store. And what a frustrating feeling that is. To have so many wonderful choices and have to narrow the field down to just a few.

The more children's books I see, the harder the choices become. Adding to the problem is the fact that books, like candy, are a matter of taste. So, faced with the delicious, sweet array of children's books, your child may not choose to consume the same delicacies I will recommend.

But be that as it may, I have picked a few choice morsels for your consideration, all the while worrying about what I have missed and overlooked.

On the premise that you definitely do not save the best for last, I lead off with the "Jolly Christmas Postman" by Janet and Allan Ahlberg (Little, Brown and Co., $16.95.) In this, his second delightful book, the Jolly Postman delivers Christmas postcards, letters and games (all included in pockets in the book) to familiar storybook characters. This book for ages 5 and older, is more an activity than a storybook and could easily be the most popular gift on Christmas Day.

On second thought, the family favorite might be "Where's Waldo? The Magnificent Poster Book" by Martin Handford (Little, Brown and Co., $16.95). Of course, you already have met Waldo in one of his other four books and now you can search for him in the 10 poster-size illustrations in this over-sized activity book.

The appeal of Waldo's books is that they occupy and amuse kids of all types and ages.

Every holiday season should include a new family read-aloud storybook. There are several wonderful new choices available this year.

For a storybook that will last all year, check out "The Family Read-Aloud Holiday Treasury" by Alice Low (Little, Brown and Co., $19.95.) Christmas is just one of the holidays featured in this delightful collection of short stories, poems and songs. Some of the best loved children's authors are represented in this book.

Your children may be surprised to learn that "The Jungle Book" is first and foremost a children's classic collection of stories by Rudyard Kipling, and not just a Disney movie. This edition (Arcade Publishing, $17.95) offers a wonderful opportunity to share with your children one of the most powerful storytellers of the English language.

One of my deepest and darkest holiday secrets is that I really have never liked the "Nutcracker." But there now is a translation of the original story by E.T.A. Hoffmann (Crown Publishing, $16) that offers proof that it is actually a rich and intriguing fairy tale.

Maurice Sendak's magnificent illustrations for this edition ensure that this book is not just for "Nutcracker" fans.

If fairy tales are to your child's liking, then consider two picture books by Elsa Beskow, a Swedish author and

Christmas play at Miners Theater

By Margaret Duncan
Correspondent

So ... it's too early to think about the holidays? Not if you're Keeley Jennings and the Miners Players of Collinsville.

Jennings, a first-time director at the Miners Theater, is doing her best to create more fun and excitement for this special season.

"The Best Little Christmas Pageant Ever," a funny holiday satire by Barbara Robinson, has a cast of 26 — nine adults and 17 children. Jennings says it is a challenge to work with such a large cast and so many children.

This comedy of errors centers around Mr. and Mrs. Herdman (a.k.a. Charles Dow and Dawn Burns), their family and the church Christmas Pageant.

The senior Herdmans have been cleverly roped into producing the church Christmas play. The children are reluctant participants, so with plenty of mischievous help from friends, they succeed in frazzling their parents.

Opening night is Thursday, Dec. 12. The performances begin at 7:30 p.m. Other performances will follow at 7:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday, Dec. 13-14. There is also a matinee at 2 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 15.

Tickets, available at $4 per person, can be purchased at the Collinsville Chamber of Commerce office on West Main Street.

County Historical Museum will open Christmas display Dec. 8

By Nicole Vaughn
Staff writer

The old-fashioned Christmas display at the Madison County Historical Museum, "Recalling Christmas Past," will begin its season with an open house from 1 to 4 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 8.

Refreshments will be served at the event, which is hosted by the Friends of the Museum.

The museum, housed in the eight-room federal style mansion built by Dr. John H. Weir in 1836, will be decorated for the holiday season by the Friends of the Museum.

Fresh wreaths, garlands, holly and mistletoe will be among live greenery used. Candles, bells, ribbons, bows and an old-fashioned Christmas tree will round out the decorations.

Displays will include antique toys and dolls and will continue through Dec. 29. Featured items in the displays include a Mary Ann doll. The hand-carved wooden doll, which is just under 1 foot tall, dates back to the 1700s. New to the display this year are early versions of Tinker Toys and Lincoln Logs.

The museum, at 715 N. Main St. in Edwardsville, is open from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Wednesday through Friday and from 1 to 4 p.m. Sunday. The museum is closed on holidays and admission is free.

Groups can tour the house by appointment. For more information, call 656-7562.

Disguise the can by gluing on candy canes — straight up, handles out.

Then tie a green ribbon bow around the middle of the can. This makes a cheery table accessory for napkins or candy — sweet greetings in full view.

✓ Gum drop wreath — simple. Buy a giant bag of gumdrops (assorted or one color ... your choice).

Glue the gum drops to a bought wreath (foam wreath worked well). Glue the candy in a swirl pattern (one color in a line). Finish by pinning a big bow on the bottom of the wreath.

✓ Ornaments from your kitchen. Hang gingerbread and other Christmas cookie cutters from different lengths of multi-colored ribbon. Hang on mirrors or use on the tree.

✓ Festive Centerpiece: Place a battery-operated mini-light set (use one with a white cord if possible) in a tall glass jar.

Use several jars and light sets to get the desired effect. You can hide the battery pack with "snow" garlands bought from the Christmas department of your favorite store.

✓ Light up your drive and walkway with charming bag lamps. To make: cut out circles, triangles and diamond shapes about 2 inches below the top of the brown bag...circle the bag with the design.

Fill the bag part-way with sand and sink and small round candle in the sand.

Handmade gifts provide special Christmas touch

By Margaret Duncan
Correspondent

"I made it myself."
How nice it is to say these words — especially at Christmas time — and "what fun I had doing it." Whether you paint, sew or bake, creating personal gifts is a holiday tradition we all love. Handmade gifts have had a resurgence the past decade. It has also become big business, as many craft outlets, stores, fairs and boutiques have opened their doors.

INTERESTED crafters can find many of the usual and even the unusual items and articles needed to complete almost any type of handcraft — be it large or small.

The coming holidays have given a local group of avid crafters a chance to come together and exchange gift ideas.

Members of Bluff Unit, Madison County Homemakers Extension Association, met on a recent Wednesday morning at the Collinsville Memorial Public Library to learn the art of sweat shirt embellishment.

Magically, scissors, paints, Christmas motif applique and lots and lots of sweat shirts began to appear as the women became serious crafters.

"The holidays give us a chance to show our crafts," said Tina Cashen. She was busy finishing a plaid heart applique for her special granddaughter.

MARGARET Welle was equally busy as she prepared to iron a snowman motif on a bright green sweat shirt. Edith Sykes had finished cutting out a garland of bright red poinsettias. She was easily persuaded to model her shirt as several friends helped decide the final placement of the design.

"Hey," said Florence Quatto. "These shirts are fashion originals."

"And they make great gifts," said Ida Henze.

Working quietly at another table, Jane Reeder was busy with a different project. She explained she was pinning lace to make a pillowcase doll.

"This is the perfect way to preserve an old or heirloom pillowcase," said Reeder.

"It's fun to learn new crafts," said Ann Barton.

The group invites other area crafters to its monthly meeting.

"We are always looking for new ideas," said Flora McClain.

Madison County Homemakers Extension Association members would like to share several holiday craft decoration ideas. These are fun and simple.

✓ A dandy candy holder is made with a plain tin can.

illustrator from the 19th century. In "Peter in Blueberry Land" and "Children of the Forest" (HearthSong, $14.95 each, 800-325-2502) the author has created fairy stories and lands with illustrations that evoke the works of Beatrix Potter.

But if cute and cuddly is not your child's style, do not despair. Try "Python's Party" by Brian Wildsmith (Oxford University Press, $6.95). The bright, bold animal illustrations in this paperback tell the story of a crafty python that tries to trick the other inhabitants of the jungle into providing an easy dinner for him.

"The Body Atlas" by Mark Crocker (Oxford University Press, $16.95) offers proof that reference works do not have to be boring. This detailed, illustrated guide to the human body starts with a body map and explains all systems of the body.

This is an owner's guide for the human body that is written so an elementary-grade student or a scientifically illiterate adult can understand it.

There has been much ado recently about Christopher Columbus and his discovery of America. In "The Discovery of the Americas" by Betsy and Giulio Maestro (Lothrop, Lee and Shepard Books, $14.95), Columbus is only one of a long line of discoverers credited with finding the new world.

The book offers a simple outline of the history of explorations into the Americas that is illustrated with detailed panoramas and maps.

This season when visions of sugar plums dance in your children's heads, make sure some of those visions came from good books.
